Decolonise. Now!

Visual Storytelling Training

Date: 05 -11.05.2024

Location: Vienna, Austria

INTRODUCTION: Decolonise. Now!

High time to critically look at International Voluntary Service (IVS) and work on the necessary changes inside and outside our volunteer organisations to make IVS more inclusive and equitable. That is what Decolonise Now! Is all about.

Check out www.ccivs.org/decolonise to see how IVS organisations over the last few years have been trying to critically reflect on colonial legacies and existing solidarity mechanisms in the organisations and networks that promote IVS.

Now it's time to support and accelerate the common efforts. In February 2024, the youth advocacy team worked on a long-term advocacy strategy to support several of the advocacy asks that came out of this important reflection process. With social media campaigns and impactful communication, we want to support these advocacy asks. That's why we need a group of people committed to working on these communication needs. Are you interested in building your digital communication skills? Do you want to contribute to this transformative project by developing together with others new images and stories that can support our advocacy work? Then this training is for you!

ABOUT THE TRAINING

The training focuses on visual storytelling by using digital mediums to advocate for equal, inclusive non-discriminatory volunteer service organisations. Storytelling it's not just about communication; it's a strategy, a game-changer. It allows us to unveil the authentic experiences of volunteers, revealing the complexities of their interactions with local communities. It's a tool to dismantle colonial structures, bridging gaps and connecting a global audience in a dialogue that knows no borders.

But digital storytelling isn't a mere conduit; it's a pathway to meaningful decolonisation. Through compelling narratives on digital platforms, we challenge existing norms and confront power imbalances in the volunteering space. It's a journey into uncharted territories, where we advocate for fair exchange, climate justice, and equitable partnerships in international volunteering. This course transcends a typical training experience; it's an unfolding narrative, arming us with the mesmerising influence of digital storytelling to shape a world that's fair and just—for both volunteers and the communities they serve.

This training is part of the CCIVS 2024 work plan “Decolonise. Now!” supported by the European Youth Foundation of the Council of Europe and builds on the work done in the past years by CCIVS and its members on biases and power relations within the IVS movement.

While CCIVS is coordinating the overall project, Grenzenlos is the local host for this activity and will logistically support this training. Together we hope to offer a programme that will give new insights in visual storytelling and encourage the participants to experiment with and expand their visual storytelling skills.

WHAT WILL YOU LEARN?

- The basics of visual storytelling and visual language.
- The advocacy strategy and how visual storytelling can support the CCIVS advocacy work.
- The “I narratives and frameworks” and how to promote a more inclusive and representative view of history and current events.
- How to create visual stories using video and photo to craft cohesive and persuasive narratives that can captivate and engage a wide range of audiences
- Look critically at the developed materials and improve visual storytelling guidelines for future digital visual storytelling materials in IVS.

WHO IS THIS TRAINING FOR?

The Visual Storytelling training wants to create a learning community which can support the advocacy and communication work linked to the Decolonise. Now! project. Therefore we are looking for Young volunteers/activists (18–30 years old) who:

- have an interest in International Voluntary Service and decolonisation.
- have experience in communication and/or are eager to actively develop their communication skills throughout the project.
- have an interest in communication work in the framework of social change processes.
- are active in an organisation, OR youth group OR have a background in volunteering or activism.
- can attend the training in English.
- Mainly come from different European countries (check if your country is eligible here: Council of Europe countries) but also a few places are reserved for non-European countries.

In case you don't fit the age criteria but have a strong interest in being part of the group, please contact your organisation.

The selection will take into consideration inclusiveness principles such as gender balance (including + groups), accessibility for people with disabilities and ensuring geographical, ethnic and socio-cultural diversity.

WHAT WILL WE DO?

During the training, we will create communication materials for the different campaigns to come while learning and experimenting with different tools. As a follow-up of the training, participants are expected to create in small groups materials around topics defined during the training and support the communication campaigns in the framework of the Decolonise. Now! Project.

You have the opportunity to learn and work together with 20 people from different backgrounds, developing your communication skills around the topic of IVS and decolonisation through this training, mentoring and peer-to-peer learning activities.

The learning journey

- Online preparation session: April 2024
- On-site training in Vienna, Austria, May 2024
- Remote work in small teams on commonly agreed topics, June - July 2024
- Online evaluation meeting, September 2024

2 participants will have the opportunity to participate in the Tool Fair in October in Bulgaria to bring stories about the Decolonise. Now! Tool Fair.
